Letter From The President

What a winter!! I hope everyone is well and is ready for some warmer weather as I am. The only good thing about being stuck inside is it gives you more time to work on your genealogy.

If you have not been to the meetings in the last couple of months you have missed out. Mark Dudney spoke on his book, The Sons of The Cumberland. Very good book about Cordell Hull and John Gore. Prof. Troy Smith from TTU spoke on the slaves from Sparta and the Civil War. He has used census records to track some of the African American soldiers, some are still in the Sparta area and some went west. It was a very interesting talk. I am from Sparta and I heard stuff I had never heard before.

Our April meeting will be held at Granville's Methodist Church. April 11, 2015 is the Granville Genealogy Festival. We have a great list of speakers and topics for the day. Prof Greg Pryor will speak on the Upper Cumberland in the 1020's, Prof Carolyn Powell will speak on the WWII German and Italian prisoner of war camp in Crossville and the effects of the community.

Edie Williams will do her DNA class. Our meeting will be at 2:00 with Ron Goode speaking on military records, how to find and what info you can get from them. Dr. Op Walker will speak on Healthy Ancestors of Our Past. The festival starts at 9:00 a.m. and ends around 5:00. To see a complete list of events go to Granville website.

Please send in your family stories and genealogy for the Researcher. Jamie needs your help to keep up the quality of the Researcher. It is just my opinion but I think we have one of the best ones around!!!

If you do not receive emails about meetings please send me your email at theresa.ucga@gmail.com and I will add you to the list. You may also check out the website ucga.info I try to update as much as possible. I have my fingers crossed for our May meeting. Hoping to have permission to go to the Officers Chapel Cemetery to clean off and have Prof Carolyn Powell show us the proper way to clean and restore tombstones.

You may get in touch with me through the website or at the number below if you need anything. Would love your feedback on speakers and programs you would like to have.

Dear Julia Ann Marcum Chapter, NSDU prospective members,

It is time to begin thinking about the formal organizational process. This is a two step process. First is an organizational meeting attended only by the local chapter members. At this meeting we will adopt chapter bylaws and elect chapter officers. All members whose applications have been verified prior to that time will be considered organizing members. At some point following that meeting, the charter meeting will be held. The charter meeting will be attended by at least one member of the national board. I have been asked to submit potential dates for the charter meeting and am considering a Saturday in late August/early September. All members who join after the organizing meeting up to one year from the date of the charter meeting are considered charter members.

I am polling those of you who indicated an interest in joining the Julia Ann Marcum Chapter but are still working on your applications. The next deadline for submittal of applications to be verified would be to me by April 7. If not able to meet that date, the next opportunity would be around the end of June. The Organizing Secretary General wasn't sure of the summer meeting date. Once I receive the documentation, I have to prepare the final application and mail it to the Org Secy General. She then reviews and forwards to the Registrar General who gives the final approval and then presents the names to the national board. There are now 8 chapters in the process of organizing so these two national officers are working very hard to review all the applications they are receiving in a timely manner.

Please let me know if:

1. I am interested in being an organizing member and will have my documentation ready by April 7
2. I am interested in being an organizing member and will have my documentation ready by the end of June.
3. I am interested in being a member but will not have my documentation ready by the end of June.
4. I am not interested in becoming a member at this time.

If you have not yet ordered the pension packet from National Archives, let me know and I can send you the order form. The turn around time has been around 3 weeks. If you need help locating documentation for any of the other generations or are not sure what documentation you need, please let me know so I can help.

National Society Daughters of the Union 1861-1865

A new chapter of the National Society Daughters of the Union 1861-1865 is being organized in the Upper Cumberland area. The national society currently has 25 active chapters, four of which were organized in the last two years. The new local chapter is one of five chapters in the process of organizing and will be the second chapter in Tennessee, joining the Andrew Jackson Penny Chapter in Chattanooga chartered in 2010.

The new chapter will be named after Julia Ann Marcum who was born in Scott County, TN. She was granted a pension by a special act of Congress for wounds she received while helping to defend her home in 1861 at the age of 16. One of the fingers on her right hand was shot off and a bayonet was plunged through her skull and left eye. Julia died in 1936 and is buried in Whitely County, Kentucky.

Membership is open to any woman eighteen years of age or over provided she is a direct lineal or collateral descendant of a man or woman who rendered military or civil service to the Union during the years 1861-1865. Collateral descent refers to what is sometimes called an "uncle" line. This means the ancestor can be a half or full sibling of your direct ancestor. An example of collateral lineage would be your great-grandmother's brother. Cousins or relatives by marriage do not qualify. Legal adoption does not qualify for lineal or collateral descent. Junior membership is open to any female child under eighteen years of age who meets the eligibility requirements. Proof of service, including enlistment and discharge dates, is required as part of the application.

The objectives of the society are:

- ❖ To honor the memory of the men and women who contributed toward the preservation of the Union during the Civil War, extending over the years 1861-1865
- ❖ To foster a spirit of patriotism, loyalty and love of country
- ❖ To uphold the honor of the Flag of the United States of America
- ❖ To give financial aid to Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tennessee

The national society requires local chapters meet four times per year. The time and location for the meetings will be determined by the new chapter members. The membership application fee is $15. Annual national dues are $10. There are no state dues and chapter dues will be established by the chapter members and will include a $5 contribution per member to Lincoln Memorial University.

Twelve women have already submitted their applications and another five are in the process of gathering their documentation. If you are interested in becoming a member of the Julia Ann Marcum Chapter, NSDU and joining this growing organization, please contact Lynn Constan, Organizing Regent, 970-946-8480, lynncon530@hotmail.com

The following is a list of men from Putnam County who were Union veterans. If you are a woman who is a descendant of one of these men, or a descendant of a brother or a sister of one of these men, then you are eligible to join. Of course descendants of men from other counties and other states are welcome as well.

Tennessee State News

It has been discovered that four families living in Tennessee, near Bristol, have raised more children than any other four families in America. Rev. Asa Routh, a Baptist minister residing at Piney Flats, near Bristol, is the father of thirty-three living children, many of whom still reside at the old homestead. John Sams, of Bristol, is now living with his third wife, two of whom were sisters, and the present wife a sister-in-law. He is the father of twenty-three children, all single but one. Thomas Miles, of Abington, had twenty one sons. Each one served in the Confederate army. Charles Addngton, who died recently in Scott County, aged 107 years, had thirty-four children. County Court Clerk Woods, of Bristol, vouches for this statement. This makes a total of 111 children in four families.

Miscellaneous

A strange story of bread keeping for seventy-five years comes from Overton County. James and Lizzie Ashenburst were married in Ireland in the year 1817, and left the next day for the United States and landed in New York. Before leaving Ireland they prepared provisions to live upon their voyage. Among other things were many loaves of oatmeal bread. Arriving at New York they had several of these loaves left, and now they have two of them in an apparently good state of preservation. On the day of their marriage the bride and groom were respectively 18 and 16 years of age. They now live near the north border of Overton County, having many children and grandchildren living near them.

Locals

Mrs. Price, living about three miles south of town, died last Monday of dropsy.

Albany, KY.

On the 23rd inst. some young men were out hunting, when one of them, Hiram Moore, was shot and instantly killed by the accidental discharge of his gun. The ball entered his right side between the seventh and eighth ribs. He lived but three minutes. His death was very shocking and created much sorrow. He was a respectful and intelligent young man. He was attending the school at this place, and was loved and respected by all of his school mates who deeply feel his sad taking off.

Nettle Carrier

April 30. Acting upon the suggestion of your Cincinnati correspondent I desire to say for the benefit of the readers at a distance that Nettle Carrier is situated in a prosperous community, seven miles east of Livingston, the county seat of Overton Co., four miles south of old Monroe, and twenty one miles west of Jamestown. It takes its name from the little stream upon which it is situated, the latter being called Nettle Carrier in honor of an old Indian hunter who, refusing to go with his tribe, lingered upon its head waters long after the approach of civilization. Traditional history is replete with interesting events connected with the life of this solitary Indian.

Upper Cumberland Place Names

Dale Hollow-Clay County. William Dale resided in bordering Overton County in 1830. Twenty years later, a portion of Overton went to help constitute Clay County. Elizabeth Dale is also listed as a local resident. The map designation may owe to one both of these individuals, although some believe attribution of the place named goes to an 1808 settler named William Dale (possibly an ancestor of the one named (above?) who was engaged in determining in Tennessee-Kentucky boundary.

Davenport-Warren County. One family of settlers in this vicinity had the Davenport surname. The community traces to them.

Davidson-Fentress County. A person who owned mines here is said to be the source of the place name.

Daylight-Warren County. An account in an early Warren County history includes more than one version of the possible name selection process. The most entertaining one holds that Harvey Dodd, Oliver Towles, and US Knight were conferring what to name the Hamlet. It is said that Knight preferred "Knight". Some others being Yager (for local storekeeper Ed Yager's) an Hickory Grove. Obviously Daylight won out.

Day's Crossroads Macon County. At the time of the 1850 census, Thomas B Day was a local citizen. It is likely he resided near the intersecting roads here. Another source discloses the presence of the Dodd surname in the area business. Turner, Day, & Woolworth Manufacturing produced ax handles in nearly Lafayette, while Day & Allen operated a stage line with service between Lafayette and nearby county seats.

Daysville-Cumberland County. Although little detail could be found, the place is said to have been named for a pioneer with the surname of Days (or Day). A family having this last name is said to have settled on Mammy's Creek. In 1901, George W Day was appointed postmaster.

Denny-Putnam County. One map lists a community called Denny Seminary in Putnam County, an institution that was probably located at this site. In 1870, three Dennys resided nearby; James, age 52; John S, 44; and Johnathan, 50

Dibrell-Warren County. There were many Dibrells in this region, some in Warren County and White County just to the northeast. A General Dibrell served in the Civil War. Among the Dibrells who populated this general area were Anthony, Mary E, Mildred. G.G., M. C., W.L. and George G.

Difficult-Smith County. Either the establishment of a post-office at the site, or a name suggested for such an office was rejected by the Post Office Department as being too difficult; whereupon the designation Difficult was itself adapted Ditty- Putnam County. Abraham and John Ditty were local citizens in 1830. Andy Derry, A H and Sarah Ditty lived in the county when the 1870 census was taken. The place name probably traces back to these families.

Dixon Springs-Smith County. In 1799, the first county court convened for a three day meeting at the home of Major Tillman Dixon. The locality was labeled Dixon Springs for a freshwater spring on the west side of Major Dixon's home. The creek feeding the area is Dixon Creek and the historical home, which still stands, is known as Dixonia. An obscure reference is also found in old county records to a Don Cl Dixon, circa 1837. Any connection between the two is not readily evident.

Dodson Branch Jackson County. Although the site designated as Dodson Branch is on the opposite side of the county from Smith County, there may be a relationship to the Dodsons of Smith County. (A portion of Smith County contributed to the makeup of Jackson County.) James Dodson was a Smith County resident in 1840. "Branch" refers to a branch of Spring Creek.

Donoho Smith County. E.C. and F.W. Donoho are known to have lived in Smith County when the 1830 census of Middle Tennessee was recorded. One of them, or one of their ancestors or descendants, probably inspired this site to be so designated.

Dorton Cumberland County. According to Cumberland County's First Hundred Years, this location was named for James W Dorton. The name was assigned about 1900 by railroad officials out of respect for Dorton, who served as their local attorney. When the 1870 census was taken, Azariah, Joseph, and Nancy Dorton also called this county home.

Double Springs Putnam County There are said to be five mineral springs at this locality. Perhaps only two of them were discovered at first, inspiring the Double Springs name.

Dowell Town DeKalb County. The settlement was developed beginning in about 1867 by W. Frank Dowell after whom the post office was named. Later, the town itself became known by his surname. One source gives 1876 as the year of founding incorporation took place in 1949.

Draper's Crossroads Macon County. Isaac and Joshua Draper lived nearby in 1850. By 1870, Andrew J Draper, age 48, was a resident of the neighborhood. The intersection was probably named for them or some member of the Draper clan. One map calls the community simply Draper.

Dudney Hill Jackson County. In 1850, Patrick N and Shelby Dudney resided in this vicinity. However, as early as 1820, records show the local residency of Ann Dudney. It is likely their surname was applied to the community at this elevation.

Eastland White County. Local records disclose the marriages of several Eastland. George and Charles, both in 1835 and Robert M in 1843, Thomas Eastland held a large parcel of land here; the place is probably named after him. Were it not for the existence of persons with this surname, one might assume the designation was the hamlet's location, in the extreme eastern portion of the county.

Eastport Pickett County. Eastport is located on the Obey River and no doubt goods were shipped on the river from this location, accounting for the "port". The "East: part of the name is somewhat mystifying; the town is in one of the southernmost sections of the county.

Elmwood Smith County. American elms and slippery elms grew throughout Tennessee. This site was name for a prominent stand of one variety or the other.

Enon Macon County In the New Testament, a site called Aenon is mentioned. This designation is probably a shortened version of it, and was probably favored because it was terse and euphonious.

Ensor Putnam County. The only Ensor who can be placed in this general area was Ruth, a Jackson County resident in 1830. Jackson County is immediately north of Putnam and portions of it were taken to help make up Putnam. Probably in the portion taken from Jackson was this community of Ensor.

Evins Mills DeKalb County. In 1870 John Evins, then age 51, resided in the county. It is likely he, or some members of his family ran a mill at this location and gave the family name to the site.

Virtual Networking

Tarr, Julie Cahill (2015) Educational Opportunities in Genealogy Part 2. NGS Magazine (41) 1, pp18-19

Using social networking services, such as Facebook (<http://facebook.com>) or Google+ (<http://plus.google.com>), can also serve as wonderful learning opportunity. While building a network of people with similar interests is an important aspect of virtual networking, some people are not comfortable “friending” total strangers. Services like Facebook and Google+ offer other ways to connect with other genealogists without adding them to your inner circle.

On Facebook, you can join “groups” and participate in all sorts of discussions. This same concept is known as “communities” on Google+. There is no shortage of genealogy-related groups on either service. These groups/communities allow you to post relevant information (say, a new online record set that may be of interest to the people in the group) and ask and answer questions. You can also be a silent participant and simply follow along, picking up information and tips from the others in the group.

There are tons of groups/communities to choose from. To find genealogy-related groups on Facebook, type the word “genealogy” into the search box, and at the bottom of the list choose “See more results for ‘genealogy.’” On Google+, type the word “genealogy” into the search box and hit the enter key. At the top of the results page, click on “Communities.” Here are a few of the groups you might be interested in joining.

In addition to groups/communities, you should also consider following genealogy businesses and societies or other genealogy-related pages (found on both Facebook and Google+). These pages often post news items as well as research tips and tricks. Here are some of the pages you may want to follow:

I was also contacted wanting information on the picture below.

To whom it may concern:

I do hope you will be able to assist me in identifying a photo found in pictures of a family member that is deceased.

"Lilly Shanks" was written on the back of the picture. However, no one in the family seems to recognize this person. I do not know whether Shanks is her maiden name or if it is a married name. The picture was taken by Hardemans Studio in Cookeville, TN about Dec 11, 1945.

Thank you in advance for your assistance
